eat Abdallah's meat. The youth drove him away, but he came again, wearing beautiful clothes. One day Abdallah was found lying dead, his face black, and on his throat the print of a mightly finger, as large as a man's hand. The fly had become a giant.

That is a picture of the ease and rapidity with which bad habits grow. And after they are fixed upon us it is the hardest thing in the world to uproot them.

Doctor Peloubet tells of an old tavern that was changed to a dwelling-house, the barroom being transformed into a parlor. The building was used as a dwelling for twenty years, but even at the end of that time, if the parlor were kept closed for a few days, it would smell of the old rum and tobacco.

A father once taught his son this lesson: "Drive a nail into this board John," he commanded, and the boy obeyed. "Now pull it out again." The boy did so. "Now, John, pull out the hole." Ah, you may think you have conquered a habit, pulled it up by the root, but the hole is there, and it is so easy to fall into the old ways. Endless patience is needed if we would break off our bad habits. Remember John Boyle O Rellly's rhyme:

"How shall I a habit break?"

As you did that habit make.

"How shall I a habit break?"
As you did that habit make.
As you gathered, you must lose;
As you yielded, now refuse;
Thread by thread the strands we twist
Till they blind us, hand and wrst;
Thread by thread the patient hand
Must untwine, ere free we stand.

Thread by thread the patient hand Must untwine, ere free we stand.

That is true, and we must be patient and persistent with ourselves and with all that are trying to undo the past. And yet we must not make the mistake of the foolish man who set to work one winter morning to scrape the frost from his window panes. He complained to a pasting neighbor. 'It keeps coming on one pane as fast as I get it off of another." 'Why, man.' said the neighbor, 'Heave your windows alone and kindle a fire and the frost will come off all at once and without any of your rouble."

You are like that foolish man if you try to break off your bad habits one at a time and by your own efforts. Build in your heart the fire of love, crowd your life full of warmth and good cheer and brightness and the bad habits will disappear as the frost melts off the window pane. Patience is needed still, and lots of it. The fire may go out. You may need to rekindle it, again and argain, in any event, as O'Reilly saye, you must work as hard to get rid of a habit as to get the habit in the first place. But work on the heart and not on the habit, Crowd out the evil by crowding in the SCRUGGS MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Special Exercises Will Be Conducted at St. John's Church To-Morrow. A service will be held to-morrow after-noon at 3:30 o'clock at St. John's M. E. Church, South, King's Highway and Washington avenue, in memory of the late

Members of the various M. E. churches Members of the various M. B. churches in St. Louis will attend the service at which addresses will be delivered by sev-eral of the prominent pastors of the city. THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON. For December 11. "Captivity of the Ten Tribes."

INTRODUCTION-After five weeks deroted to the study of the kings and prophets of Judah, we return to a last view of Israel. A succession if wicked kings, all in the footsteps of Ahas, occupied the throne, each security seeking to outstrip his predecessor in the service of idos. Several of them suffered violent deaths. Through all the changes the people continued their mad career of sin and folly, following the example of their rulers. Perhaps they had forgotten the predictions of wrath and had come to think that the old propiet was a fanatic. But God had not forgotten. (Psaim cili, 9.) Although he had mercifully waited, giving time for repentence, his purposes had not change. At last the day of his judgment came, when his words to Amos ets of Judah, we return to a last view of
